Microsoft's recent licensing or purchase of SGI's 3-D patents makes it clear to me that this is still a company throwing its weight around in the never-ending goal of crushing any competing technologies, regardless of the impact to the end-user.

(As an ex-GO employee and current user of OpenGL, Microsoft has been no friend of mine.)

Please strive to place the most stringent and punitive remedies first. Having Microsoft get off by delivering more of it's poor-quality software is hardly a solution to the problem.
